Teaching Philosophy

I firmly believe all students are capable of dealing with any possible mathematical problem, disregarding whether they like numbers or not.

Yes you can is my philosophy and lots of students have surprised themselves when they finally get to understand topics they didn't at school or even solving problems that might seem harder or impossible to others.

Professional Profile

I have had the chance to work for different professionals at National and Johnson & Johnson, a well-known Multinational company, doing what I do best, teaching. I try to give students the benefit of years of experience managing a business.

His teaching style stresses fairness to all with an emphasis on the professor as mentor and representative of the business world the student hopes to enter.
